“Humble of Heart”

There are two kinds of humility in Christ as regards his divinity. The first is that he willed to become a human being and so took upon himself that same human nature which had been banished and condemned to the depths of hell. He willed to become one with this nature in the unity of his person, with the result that everyone, whether good or evil, can say, “Christ, the Son of God, is my brother.” The other kind of humility as regards Christ’s divinity is that he chose a poor maiden and not the daughter of a king to be his mother. Thus it was that that poor maiden became the Mother of God, of him who is Lord of heaven and earth and of all creatures. Moreover, of all the works of humility which Christ ever did it can truly be said that God did them.

Let us next consider the humility which, by means of grace and divine gifts, was in Christ as regards his humanity. His soul with all its powers bowed down in reverence and homage before the exalted might of the Father, and a heart thus bowed down is a humble heart. As a result, Christ performed all his works for the honor and praise of his Father and in no way sought glory for himself as regards his humanity. He was humble and subject to the Old Law and to its commandments, and sometimes even to its customs when that was fitting. For that reason he was circumcised and was taken to the Temple to be redeemed, as was the custom, and he paid the tribute money to Caesar just like the other Jews. He was also humble and submissive to his mother and to Joseph, serving them with genuine humility in all their needs. He chose poor and insignificant persons as his companions, to go about with him and convert the world. These were the apostles, and he was lowly and humble among them and among everyone else. He was thus at the disposal of all persons whatever their needs, whether interior or exterior ones, just as if he were the servant of the world.

The Wisdom of Fulton Sheen

The person who thinks only of himself says only prayers of petition; the one who thinks of his neighbor says prayers of intercession; whoever thinks only of loving and serving God says prayers of abandonment to God’s will, and this is the prayer of the saints.

Fulton Sheen to be beautified on September 24, 2026 in St. Louis, Missouri.
